

Theater Stage

Rail and curtain construction
for the design of a classic theater stage

Every stage consisting of plug-in-foot or scissors-type platforms can be equipped with a mobile stage construction - consisting of multi-chamber profiles as well as a curtain pull system and curtains - and so be expanded to a complete theater stage.

The system can remain fully mobile (structure always suitable for the event), but it can also be partially integrated into existing rooms so that components are permanently installed and others, for example curtains, only when required.
